

A PASSION FOR PLANTS: TWO ARTIST'S VIEWS

Redenta Soprano & Carolyn Cohen

Continuing through February 2, 2006

The similarities and differences in their work complement as well as contrast their depiction of plants in a variety of media.

CLOSER:

Kambiz Borhon and Jim Peters

February 4 – April 26, 2006

Fine art nature photographer Kambiz Borhon and the President of the Orlando Herpetological Society Jim Peters, team up to exhibit their intimate perspectives of flora and fauna.

Kambiz Borhon has been a photographer for seventeen years. He has studied in Sydney, Australia, Washington, D.C. and Winter Park, Florida. Borhon revels in his love for nature. Borhon developed a special connection with the Florida ecology after he moved here two years ago. He interweaves his talent and passion to create masterpieces of light and form. "Photography is not just an art for me; part of my life has been formed by it. My relationship with nature reflects the images which are selectively composed to celebrate the rhythm of life on our planet." By incorporating his sense of connection into the subject's photograph, Borhon's prints take on the life of a portrait.

Peters has been president of the Orlando Herpetological Society for the past two years. He utilizes his education and appreciation for Florida fauna to educate the public and encourage respect for the delicate balance of Florida's ecology. Peters feels photography allows him to accentuate the rich beauty of his subjects that the general public rarely has the opportunity to see. "Photography enables me to reveal to people how to see animals in different lights and perspectives." Peters dedicates his time to giving public lectures and educating local organizations and the need for public interest and awareness. He also aids in charitable benefits such as funding events for The Nature Conservancy. He travels statewide to capture his rare subjects.

Visitor Info & Directions
Horticulture
Butterfly Garden
Museum
Education
Tours
Facility Rental
Membership
Volunteers
Special Events
Gift Shop
Memorial Program
Reference Library
Plant Societies
Other Florida Gardens
Virtual Audio Tour
Horticulture Therapy
Art Shows
Press Releases

Art at Leu Gardens

Art Exhibits

February 4, - April 26, 2006

Kambiz Borhon and Jim Peters: Closer

Fine art nature Photographer Kambiz Borhon and President of the Orlando Herpetological Society Jim Peters, team up to exhibit their intimate photographic perspectives of flora and fauna.

Harry P. Leu Gardens
 1920 N. Forest Ave.
 Orlando, FL 32803-1537
 407-246-2620
Directions

Kambiz Borhon has been a photographer for seventeen years. He has studied in Sydney, Australia, Washington, D.C. and Winter Park, Florida. Borhon revels in his love for nature. Borhon developed a special connection with the Florida ecology after he moved here two years ago. He interweaves his talent and passion to create masterpieces of light and form. "Photography is not just an art for me; part of my life has been formed by it. My relationship with nature reflects the images which are selectively composed to celebrate the rhythm of life on our planet." By incorporating his sense of connection into the subject's photograph, Borhon's prints take on the life of a portrait.

Peters has been president of the Orlando Herpetological Society for the past two years. He utilizes his education and appreciation for Florida fauna to educate the public and encourage respect for the delicate balance of Florida's ecology. Peters feels photography allows him to accentuate the rich beauty of his subjects that the general public rarely has the opportunity to see. "Photography enables me to reveal to people how to see animals in different lights and perspectives." Peters dedicates his time to giving public lectures and educating local organizations and the need for public interest